

Thanks.

There is no doubt that there are gains to be made by additional control.

However it is likely that the changes will result in the stability of the system being at risk.

While the system is fulfilled by synchronous plant, stability is relatively easy to achieve.

When the system is more electronic in nature, stability will become more difficult to achieve.

Regards,

Peter Morfee (He, Him)

Mataaro Pūhiko